

Station 17 – District Office of Sickingen-Hohenburg

In the late-Sickingen time in 1770, the district office of the Skickingen-Hohenburg reign department, which is a blazingly huge corner house at the very end of the Church Street, was built as an administrative center for the bailiffs. They had to deal with the bigger part of the property of Sickingen.

Today the building is in private property.